...AND NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH

RAMESH NYBERG

This column is dedicated to the memories of Officer Brian Sicknick, Officer Jeffrey Smith and Officer Howard Liebengood. Rest in peace, brave warriors.

Nightmare scenario, perfect storm... whatever phrase you want to ascribe to January 6th, 2021, it probably doesn't suffice in expressing the trauma, fear, stress, and downright desperation our brothers and sisters in blue suffered at the hands of the raging, violent mob which attacked our capitol building that day.

It was the ultimate police brutality. Only we were the ones being brutalized.

If you are familiar with this column, you know I don't go down political rabbit holes. I will not do so now. This column, like all the others I have written for the past three plus decades, always comes from a police perspective. Because the reality is that, while most police officers in this nation are probably on the conservative side, and probably on the Republican side, there are also many Democrats – and even liberals – who wear the uniform and work alongside you. We are an institution made up of our communities. We are black, brown, gay, straight, religious, atheist, and everything else we find in the ranks of our citizens.

When we are attacked, however, our response is almost always: We are the police. You can't have an orderly society – a society of laws – without us. Whether that attack comes from a journalist's pen or a metal pole, we lock our arms and defend our own. At that point, we don't worry about what any of us does when we get home, nor does it matter who is doing the attacking.

A funny scene in My Cousin Vinny portrays actress Marissa Tomei being appalled at Vinny fretting over what to wear to go deer hunting. She hilariously describes the deer getting its head blown off and then says, "Would you give a f### what kind of pants the sonofabitch who shot you was wearing?"

And that's us, isn't it? At the time we are being attacked, we don't care who you are or what you stand for. There's no time for that; there is only time to try and survive. We don't give a damn what your ideology is or what point you're trying to make. You could be a lone whacko with an AR-15, or a drunken idiot with a barstool, or a mental patient with a knife. You're going to get the same response from us, regardless. You could be decked out in Antifa gear or you could be waving a Confederate flag. Don't attack police officers.

We don't care what the sonofabitch is wearing.

In the immediate aftermath of the January 6th attack, the media screeched about how "different" the police response was from BLM protests around the country. Once the videos came out, however, those voices went silent. Scene after scene showed police officers, so heavily outnumbered it was heartbreaking, trying to do the impossible. They desperately tried to keep thin barriers in place. There were multiple scenes showing a line of 12 or 15 officers trying to push back and swat away thousands of attackers who threw metal poles, threw punches and sprayed tear gas. And, somewhere in the chaos, Brian Sicknick was overwhelmed, stomped and beaten.

Inside the capitol building, the hand-to-hand combat continued to rage. Scores more officers would end up in the hospital – I believe the number was around 140 – and two more would later take their own lives, unable to fight off whatever battle must have continued in their souls.

One officer, in a now well-known interview, talked about how he heard rioters talking about getting his gun away from him and killing him. He pleaded with them and told them he had a family. Though he was grateful for the ones who circled and ultimately shielded him from further harm, his anger that any of it happened was palpable.

"To them, I say, 'Thank you...but 'f' you for being there.'"

I know that you have done what I've done more than a few times: Your mind has imagined being one of those officers. Maybe, like me, you've stood in a line in your riot gear and faced an anarchist mob. During the FTAA protests in Miami in 2003, hundreds of us trained for the coming November Free Trade of the Americas Summit being hosted downtown. We had seen what the Black Bloc and other lunatics had done in other cities around the country and the world, and our civic leaders here in south Florida decided we weren't going to have it. We expected the worst and it never came because those protestors saw us form up, looked at us and decided it wasn't worth trying. We looked formidable – and we were. The riot simulations we conducted in the weeks previous to the event were the toughest and most exhausting I've been through in my police career. The training coordinators made it so real that we had a few real fights break out. We went home sore and tired. When it was game time, we were more than ready.

I'm not going to get involved in criticizing the law enforcement leadership. That's another rabbit hole I'm not informed enough to travel down. The bottom line is that the preparation and presence was not enough; that much we can all agree on because what unfolded proved it. It must never happen again. We must never again assume that a potentially volatile situation won't really get volatile. This doesn't happen here. It happens in Third World banana republics and despotic regimes. We decided 245 years ago that we were going to be a nation of dignity and fairness. We can never get that close to this kind of anarchy again. And we, brothers and sisters, can never be punching bags and targets of death for any kind of insurrection, for any mob, with any kind of destruction planned for our country and its principles.

Those officers who fought so hard and so valiantly made my heart swell with pride when I watched those desperate scenes and imagined what they were going through while they were getting jabbed, beaten, showered with debris, and crushed. I wanted to be young again and be right there beside them. They literally defended freedom and they all deserve every commendation there is.

We are the country's last line of defense and January 6th showed that to the nation. You don't attack our country and you don't attack us.

We don't care what you're wearing.

PRODUCT HIGHLIGHT

COAST PRODUCTS, INC.

The XP11R flashlight offers a four mode, multibeam capability. It features a real-time power indicator, plus slide focusing optical technology, which provides a clean floodlight and piercing spotlight with seamless transitions between. The XP11R is a rechargeable, dual power light which provides the convenience and cost savings of COAST's ZITHION-X™ rechargeable power source which can also operate on 3 AAA alkaline batteries. Remove the rechargeable battery to plug in or charge it up with the battery still inside thanks to the integrated ProTek™ charging port and battery charging indicator. The XP11R flashlight not only features a medium, high and low output modes, but also Turbo Mode for overpowered light in critical situations. A high textured handle styling ensures a solid grip and its Beam Lock feature allows you to set your beam just how you need it.

NIGHTSTICK

The USB-578XL Rechargeable Compact Duty Light generates a 900 lumen beam for up to three hours on a single charge. Weighing only 6.9 ounces, this multifunction metal tactical flashlight features an additional 250 lumen floodlight and a 500 lumen Dual-Light™ mode. Rated IP-X7 waterproof, it features a threaded collar which opens for USB charging; the indicator light changes from red to green when fully charged. It also includes a two foot USB charging cable, a lithium-ion rechargeable battery and a CR123 battery carrier (batteries not included).

STREAMLIGHT®

Streamlight has introduced the Wedge™, a USB-C rechargeable, everyday carry flashlight with a thin, compact design for deep pocket carry. Featuring an intuitive rotating thumb switch, the Wedge provides two modes: a 300 lumen constant on mode and a 1,000 lumen momentary THRO™ (Temporarily Heightened Regulated Output) mode.

On the THRO momentary setting, the Wedge delivers a 35 second burst of 1,000 lumens and 3,000 candela over a 110 meter beam distance. In constant on mode, it provides 300 lumens, 1,200 candela, a beam distance of 69 meters, and a three hour runtime.

Made from rugged anodized aluminum, the Wedge measures just 5.46 inches long and one inch high, and weighs 3.3 ounces.

STREAMLIGHT®

Streamlight recently introduced new laser models of its ultracompact TLR-6® rail mount weapon light to fit best-selling subcompact handguns. The company also launched a non-laser version of its TLR-6 for select subcompact handguns.

Each of the new models delivers 100 lumens and 2,000 candela over a beam distance of 89 meters. The laser models offer three lighting modes: LED only; LED/laser; and laser only, with operating runtimes of one hour for the LED only and LED/laser modes, and 11 hours for the laser only mode.

The new lights are powered by two, three volt CR 1/3N lithium coin batteries. They feature an integrated battery door which permits batteries to be replaced while the light remains mounted on the gun, eliminating the need to resight the laser after a battery change.

Streamlight recently introduced the ultracompact and low profile TLR-7® sub, a weapon mounted tactical light with an ergonomic on/off position rear switch. It is available to fit select GLOCK®, SIG SAUER®, Smith & Wesson®, Beretta®, Springfield Armory®, and Heckler & Koch® railed subcompact handguns.

The TLR-7 sub features an LED which delivers 5,000 candela and 500 lumens over a beam distance of 141 meters. Its custom TIR optic produces a concentrated beam which provides both extensive range as well as optimized peripheral coverage. It offers two lighting modes, LED only or LED strobe, each with a runtime of 1.5 hours. The light is energized by a single three volt CR123A lithium battery.

The new TLR-7 sub features a one-handed, snap on and tighten interface which keeps hands away from gun muzzles when attaching or detaching them. The light also includes a "Safe Off" feature, locking it so it cannot be turned on accidentally.

Streamlight has introduced the TLR® RM 1 Laser and TLR RM 2 Laser tactical lighting systems for long guns. Packaged as a system, each rail mounted light features independently operating push-button and remote pressure switches. Also available in light only models, the TLR RM 1 Laser and the TLR RM 2 Laser deliver 500 and 1,000 lumens, respectively.

The rail mount systems include a multifunction tail switch, along with a remote switch input option. The remote switch is designed to exit the weapon at a 90° angle, improving wire routing to preserve rail space. The lights feature three modes: laser only; LED illumination only; or both, operated by the new side toggle switch. The face cap offers a "Safe Off" feature to prevent unintentional activation.

The new models are designed to quickly and securely attach to any long gun with a MIL standard 1913 or NATO rail without the need for hands in front of the muzzle.

POWERTAC

The Huntsman XLT is a small package with a long throw which typically comes from a flashlight with a big reflector and makes the head super big and cumbersome to hold or mount. The Huntsman XLT is the answer – small enough to be easily held in the hand or mounted on a long rifle. It has a 1000 meter throw (1094 yards), a 1200 lumen light and a spotlight which is extremely mobile.

POWERTAC

The Mark Mini is such a compact pistol light you almost don't see it on the pistol. It will fit all subcompact/compact/full-size pistols with a Picatinny rail under the barrel. It has a perfect balance between the flood portion of the light and the focused center beam.

The flood offers enough light for close-up situations, but not too much blowback to prevent the user from seeing the target. With the center beam, light is focused on the target to make it easier to see and the long throw from the focused beam enables the user to see from afar.

Stand Proud for this Honorable Profession

About five years ago, while teaching a class in Las Vegas, I overheard an off-the-cuff comment which has stuck with me since that time.

TODD FLETCHER

We had just finished cleaning up after class and I approached a group of officers readying to take the range. They were standing around talking, prepping gear and making sure they had all signed in for the evening's training session. Just being friendly, I asked one of the more "veteran" guys if he was qualifying or if he was at the range to do some type of firearms training. He responded, "We're just patrol officers doing our quarterly qualifications." I'm not sure he meant it the way it came out, but his answer struck me as being overly self-critical and disparaging.

He said it as if they were a group of nobodies. There was no pride in his voice and no excitement for being on the range with the opportunity to shoot OPA (Other People's Ammunition). This officer was older and mostly carried himself as if he was a leader or supervisor of the group. I mentioned to him that no one is "just" a patrol officer. It's the whole reason law enforcement exists. Patrol officers serve as the foundation of everything we do in this noble profession. His response was equally as striking as his initial statement,

"It's just the way we're treated."

Supervisors

I don't know if this guy was a supervisor or not and it doesn't really matter. Regardless, he was the oldest person in the group and should have taken a leadership and mentoring role for the younger troops around him. His response minimized his own contributions to our profession. Worse yet, he was failing to recognize the important work those young officers do every day.

Supervisors should treat our officers as if they are the single most important group in our departments. Sergeants should advocate for their officers as much as they advocate for their agency. In my career, more than once, I raised the ire of my bosses by advocating for my officers over the department. First-line supervisors should seek training opportunities for officers; be open and flexible to new approaches to solving problems; and provide officers leadership and mentorship opportunities to prepare them to be instructors and supervisors later in their careers. If officers feel they get the short end of the stick when it comes to these opportunities, then, Sarge, I blame you. Be proud of your troops and get them what they need to be successful. You won't be able to get them everything, but it shouldn't prevent you from trying.

Instructors

As instructors, the single most important group we train are the field level law enforcement officers. The days of only doing high-speed low drag training with SWAT officers should be long gone. Field level law enforcement officers are the tip of the spear. They are the first to the scene and first to the fight. They need the equipment, tactics and training to deploy effectively and save lives. Detectives, SWAT and other specialized units may respond to some in progress calls, but our road troops are responding to ALL in progress calls. They are the ones who need the best training and preparation you can provide.

If instructors set their expectations low and train to the lowest common denominator, then their students will likely meet only those low expectations. If you train them to just meet minimum standards, you are contributing to a decline in the level of professionalism at your department. We need to train with increasingly high expectations. Law enforcement officers will work to meet those harder standards. As Brian Willis from Winning Mind Training once said, "When you accept the role of a trainer, you also accept the responsibility that comes with it." Take ownership in your training programs and get them the training they need to be successful.

Command Staff

This may be the group of leaders our more experienced gentleman was talking about when he said, "It's just the way we're treated." By now, you probably know where I'm going with this article. Too much time and energy are wasted on special projects taking personnel and resources away from our core function. Some of these projects are important and need to be addressed. Some of these are done for political reasons to satisfy certain special interest groups. We all know this is part of the game. However, if these projects are routinely undertaken at the expense of our field level law enforcement officers, how do you think they feel about their role in our departments?

The folks in the field who are working their butts off every day, every night, every holiday, and every child's birthday are the future leaders and trainers of our departments. They are the ones making traffic stops, responding to domestics, interacting with business owners, and are the first to every crime scene. They make more public contacts in one day than the command staff makes in a month. They are the ones the voters remember when it's time to pass a funding measure to hire more officers, get better equipment and construct new buildings. Take ownership in your officers and get them what they need to be successful.

Officers/Deputies/Troopers/ Agents

This is the frontline group which confronts evil, delivers comfort to a crying child, and administers CPR while trying to keep someone alive. These people are the sharp end of the spear who will step in front of a knife or bullet to save someone they've never met.

This is also the group of people I am most proud to have served. It takes a person with perseverance and strength of character to work through the hiring process to get to this point. From the time they decided to answer the call to serve until the day they made it out on patrol on their own, every step of the way was another test of their character, integrity, work ethic, and ability to adapt to an ever changing environment. It starts with a simple job application, but then gets complicated. Written tests, physical agility tests, interviews, oral boards, executive interviews, psychological evaluations, medical tests, and background investigations are hurdles even before being hired. At this point, the solemn oath of office is sworn and the law enforcement code of ethics is reviewed and signed. The rigors, boredom, tests, drills, and struggles through basic academy are real. This culminates in a field training program where every move you make, every word you utter, and every sentence you write is critiqued by a veteran officer. All of this effort results in the most important position in law enforcement.

Final Thoughts

Considering the current media and political environment surrounding our profession, maybe it's time to reevaluate why we do what we do and how we view ourselves. Law enforcement is the reason society can sleep comfortably knowing their families are safe. Wearing the badge should be one of the greatest honors of your life. You have sworn to serve and protect your communities and bear the weight of

Next Gen AR-15 Mag from SENTRY

SENTRY's new Carbon Fiber AR-15 magazine, made from a carbon fiber composite blended with a PolyHex2 polymer, significantly increases the overall strength and rigidity and reduces total weight by 20 percent.

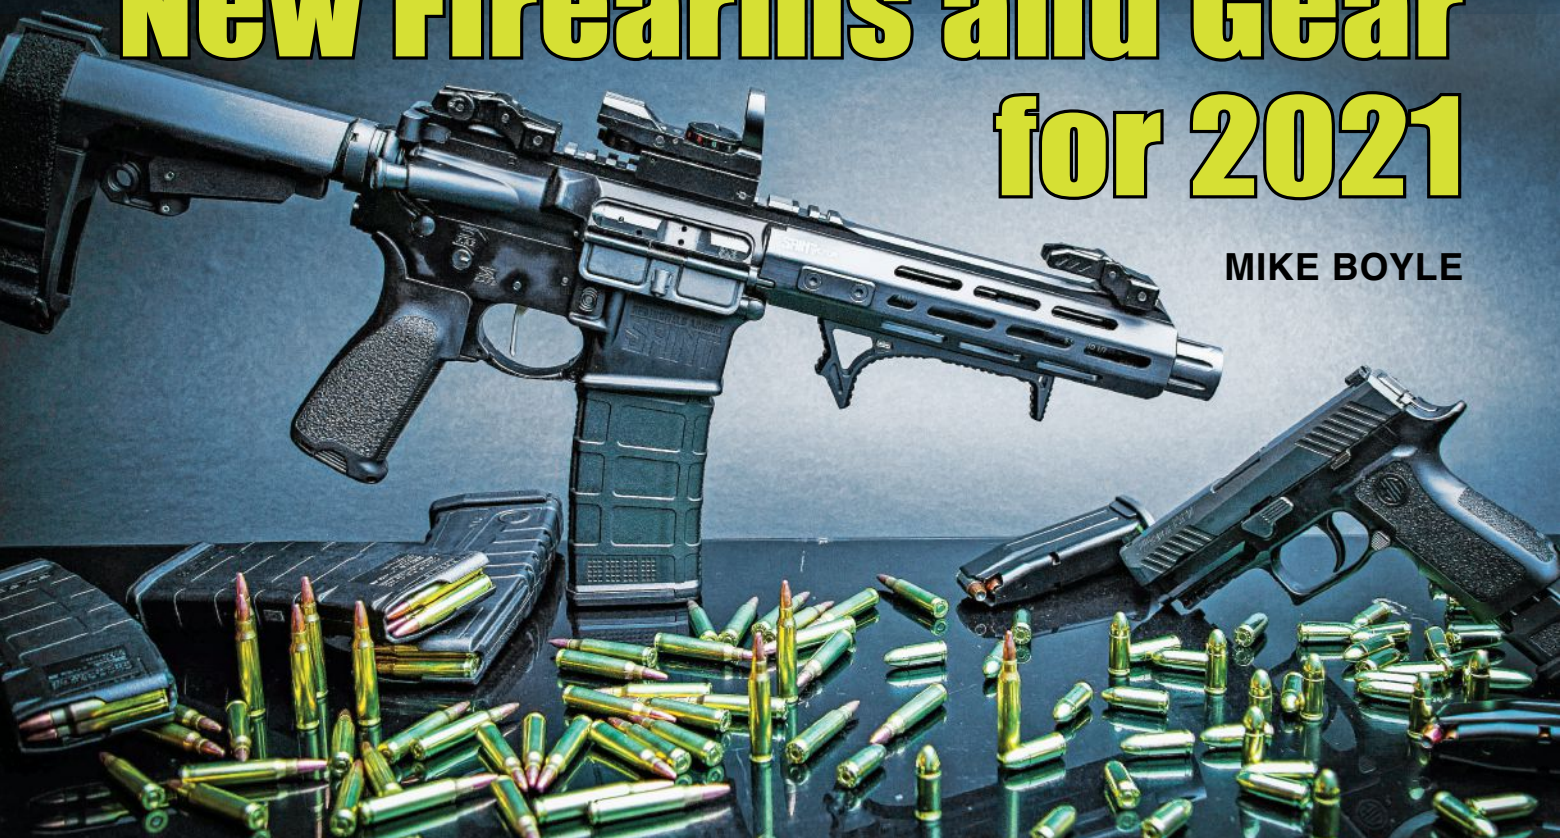

As with all Hexmag products, this new AR-15 mag features the Hexture pattern for a positive grip under all conditions. Featuring a tool-less take-down design, these magazines can be easily cleaned and maintained. Its heat-treated stainless steel spring eliminates corrosion and resists fatigue even while loaded for long periods of time. The SENTRY HexID color identification system allows users to quickly identify caliber and ammo type through the coded safety system, utilizing high visibility followers and latch plate.

New Firearms and Gear for 2021

For many years, I've looked forward to the annual SHOT Show with the same enthusiasm as a kid anticipating a visit from Santa Claus. As a self-confessed gear junkie, I manage to keep my buying habits in check, but I always look forward to walking the aisles to see what's new. But, this year, that wasn't meant to be.

The SHOT Show might be described as the world's largest gun bazaar where manufacturers promote their product lines and play to an anxious group of industry buyers and professionals. New products are typically introduced at this time with great fanfare. In recent years, the show has attracted over 50,000 attendees and over 2,000 exhibitors. Unfortunately, as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic, the 2021 SHOT Show was cancelled.

But, rest easy – there are still some new products which will be of interest to the law enforcement professional. What follows are a few different things which caught my eye and may very well suit your needs. Let's take a look.

New Pistols

To say the least, the past year has been a roller coaster for the firearms industry. The COVID-19 pandemic, large-scale social unrest and the influx of over eight million first-time gun buyers has created an unprecedented demand for firearms and ammunition. Add to that the January 2021 National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS) figures which number over two million. Despite a serious ramp-up of production, the major manufacturers cannot keep pace with consumer demand and this has had an adverse impact on law enforcement agencies as well. With production lines maxed out, it should hardly surprise you that the introduction of new firearms is somewhat limited. But, there are still a few products which offer some serious curb appeal.

Polymer frame, striker-fired pistols now dominate the law enforcement scene. FN America, LLC wasn't among the first to offer such a pistol, but their FN 509® is right up there at the head of the class. This year, they are offering the FN 509 LS Edge™ in 9mm which represents the ultimate refinement in this family of pistols. The LS Edge is a long slide, optics ready pistol with a number of other desirable features. Most notable is the flat faced trigger. When combined with a redesigned striker, it delivers a four to five pound break and a short reset. Other frills include an ambidextrous slide catch, interchangeable backstraps, a flared magwell, and a graphite PVD finish.

Miniature red dot optics are all the rage these days and they are now becoming commonplace on small hideout pistols carried by plainclothes operators and off duty officers. GLOCK® recognized this trend and they are now offering MOS versions of their popular 43X and 48 9mm pistols. These variants feature a factory cutout for the mounting of a micro dot, as well as the GLOCK Slim Mounting Rail to affix accessories such as an illuminator or laser aimer.

Heckler & Koch® struck gold with the introduction of the striker-fired VP9 9mm pistol a few years back and it has gone on to be their best-selling pistol of all time. New this year is a long slide variant called the VP9L OR and the limited edition VP9SK-B subcompact.

The HK® VP9L OR would be well suited for either competition or tactical applications. It features a long slide with a five inch barrel complete with an O-ring lockup to enhance accuracy. I have encountered the O-ring feature on other high-end HK pistols and it does indeed deliver as promised. This pistol features an optics cut and plates are available from HK to mount most of the popular red dot systems. The VP9L OR ships with a pair of 20 round magazines.

For off duty carry, I remain a proponent of a smaller version of one's service pistol. Grip angle, trigger press and vital controls are the same as the pistol you are most familiar with and this goes a long way toward better performance. The VP9SK-B is a premium grade subcompact featuring an excellent trigger with qualities similar to a single-action, as well as interchangeable backstraps and grip panels. Many HK pistols are equipped with a push down lever magazine release and this has been a deal breaker for many potential consumers. However, the VP9SK-B is outfitted with the more familiar push-button release which will broaden its appeal. The VP9SK-B ships with a ten round magazine and a 13 round magazine with an extended floor plate.

KelTec has recently introduced a most unique firearm. The new KelTec P50™ is chambered for the 5.7 X 28mm cartridge and boasts a 50 round magazine first seen on the FN P90®. I recognize that the new P50 falls under the legal definition of a handgun, but it is not something we will be encountering in a duty holster anytime soon. With an overall length of just 15 inches, this semiauto firearm would be ideal for working in confined spaces when a conventional shoulder weapon wouldn't make the cut. Picatinny-style rails and QD mounts make for easy attachment of lights and optics. The 5.7mm cartridge has some unique capabilities and, with some loads, it can defeat Level IIIA body armor.

The M&P® 9 M2.0™
Compact's slide is easy to manipulate.

The Smith & Wesson® M&P® pistol is yet another popular handgun which has morphed into several different variants. New for 2021 is the M&P 9 M2.0™ Compact with the slide cut for optics. I'm pretty fond of compact-size pistols for everyday carry as they strike an ideal balance between shooting capabilities and concealment. The longer sight radius and grip length of a compact ensures that you don't lose much of anything over a full-size service pistol and that slight reduction in size makes it easier to hide.

The Ronin™ 1911 from Springfield Armory® is now available in a hard-hitting 10mm version.

Co-witness white dot sights are standard on this pistol.

Springfield Armory® continues to move the ball forward and new offerings include a 10mm variant of the 1911 Ronin™ and the XD-S MOD.2® OSP™. The Ronin is rendered from steel and features a forged frame and slide. The powerful 10mm may not be the best choice across the board, but it does fill a useful niche. A tactical rack rear sight, fiber-optic front and attractive two-tone finish are standard. If you fancy a full-size pistol which hits hard, this new Ronin variant is worth a hard look.

The new single stack XD-S Mod.2® OSP™ comes with both a seven and nine round magazine.

Springfield also offers a number of different pistols well suited for concealed carry. Miniature red dot optics are becoming very popular for discreet carry and Springfield Armory has recently introduced the XD-S MOD.2 OSP to meet this demand. The XD-S MOD.2 OSP is a single stack pistol with a cutout slide for the mounting of one of the new generation optics. Can a red dot boost performance in a small hideout pistol? You bet! The OSP variant can be had with either a removable slide plate or with a Crimson Trace® red dot optic as an option. A seven round flush fitting magazine and a slightly extended nine shot magazine complete the package.

Holsters

BLACKHAWK® has expanded its line of duty holsters and now offers the L2D and L3D which will accommodate a pistol with a weapon mounted light and a red dot optic. Designed for duty use, these rugged retention designs are built to take hard knocks. The outer shell which is crafted from polymer and a sound dampening hydrophobic liner combine to defeat harsh elements the holster may be exposed to. BLACKHAWK has incorporated the Master Grip Principle into the design of the L2D and L3D in order for the user to quickly draw the pistol under challenging circumstances.

Galco® is yet another firm which turns out quality concealment rigs at a reasonable price. As the red revolution marches on, Galco has added a number of holsters to its line which will accommodate a concealed pistol so equipped. The BlakGuard is a neutral cant rig which is very fast into action. For ultra-discreet carry, check out the Ankle Guard. The Corvus can be worn either inside or outside the waistband, depending on needs. Rounding out the Galco mix is the Paragon, an inside the waistband holster which can be worn in the classic behind the hip position or in the forward appendix style.

Optics

A generation ago, the only optical devices commonly used by cops were telescopic scopes used by SWAT officers on their precision rifles. That has all changed and optics are widely used on patrol rifles and it's not at all unusual to see them on service and concealed carry pistols. Even this old dinosaur has been dragged kicking and screaming into the 21st century and has come to the conclusion that you either embrace this technology or get left behind. This year, a number of new products have been introduced which can get you on target even faster.

Holosun's new multi-reticle HS507C X2

is certainly innovative. One of the challenges many users find with red dot optics on a pistol is quickly acquiring a sight picture. Holosun has solved that riddle by collaborating with Primary Arms and incorporating their ACSS® Vulcan™ reticle into the new HS507C X2. A large circle quickly catches your attention and guides the eye to the aiming chevron centered in the screen. I have used a similar setup on one of my rifles and I have no doubt this will help get your pistol on target faster. The HS507C X2 also utilizes Holosun's "Shake Awake™" technology which activates the optic as it is drawn from the holster.

This year, Leupold introduced the DeltaPoint Micro™, a fully enclosed, low-profile MRDS which fits into the pistol's dovetail.

For smaller pistols used for concealed carry, this is indeed a game changer. The DeltaPoint Micro is the same height as the factory iron sights and features a three MOA dot. Initial offerings will be for GLOCK and Smith & Wesson pistols and I wouldn't be too surprised to see the line expand and cover other popular brands.

A harsh reality is that bad things happen in the dark, but the Nightforce Digillum™ illuminated reticle will get you on target – even in poor light. The new Nightforce ATACR™ 4-20x50 F1 represents their apex of mid-power tactical scopes and features a number of highly desirable features, including the ZeroStop™ turret, a power throw lever, ED lenses, and a 20x maximum magnification.

The new DeltaPoint Micro™ is a fully enclosed red dot sight specifically designed for concealed carry.

Ammunition

As this is written, demand for ammunition exceeds the industry's output, despite the fact that production is at an all-time high. Vista Outdoor, which owns the Federal, Speer® and Remington® brands, states that they have over a billion dollar backlog and expects it will be some time before they are able to catch up. The ammo shortage has indeed impacted law enforcement and I personally know of agencies which had to curtail, or suspend, critical training as a result. In spite of it, there are a few new products of interest, but it's likely to be a few months before they are actually available.

Federal has introduced the Punch 10mm JHP in their Personal Defense® line. A few short years ago, the 10mm was on life support, but it has recently enjoyed an upswing in popularity. This new load utilizes a 200-grain jacketed hollow point driven to 1100 fps which is far more powerful than the FBI spec load of the past or anything in .40 S&W. From a full-size service pistol, I found full power 10mm loads to be far more manageable than my old .357 Magnum revolver.

Many law enforcement officers rely on a small handgun for off duty or backup carry. Very often, these downsized pocket blasters are chambered for either the .38 Special or .380 ACP. Selection of a good load makes all the difference in the world relative to performance and Federal's latest offerings represent a giant step forward. In .38 Special +P, we can look forward to 130-grain Hydra-Shok® Deep which features an improved center post. For the .380 ACP, Federal has launched another Hydra-Shok variant with a 99-grain bullet. In testing, both loads penetrated to 12 inches and beyond when fired into ballistic gelatin.

Winchester's new USA Ready Defense line will include offerings in 9mm +P, .40 S&W and .45 ACP complete with the innovative Hex-Vent™ bullet. The Hex-Vent is a rigid insert which protects the hollow cavity from obstruction while channeling material flow for positive bullet expansion. The bullet is designed to meet the 12 inch penetration threshold and retain about 95% of its original weight. Bullet weights are 124 grains in 9 mm, 170 grains for .40 S&W and 200 grains in .45 ACP.

Future Shock

Over the years, a number of cartridges have been promoted as being a replacement for the 5.56 x 45mm chambered in the AR-15 family of rifles used by both the military and law enforcement. Some of the better known contenders have included the 6.8mm Remington SPC, 6.5mm Grendel and the .300 BLK. All have something to offer, but, for any number of reasons, they fell short. Last year, Hornady introduced the 6mm ARC (Advanced Rifle Cartridge) which, to date, has played to very positive reviews. In fact, rifles so chambered are already in use by at least one special ops unit within the Department of Defense.

The quality which sets the 6mm ARC apart from everything else is it can be easily adapted to the AR platform and delivers at ranges well beyond the capabilities of the 5.56mm. Hornady claims "it can do much of what the larger cartridges can and everything the smaller cartridges can't." This success is achieved by using bullets with extremely high ballistic coefficients which are very flat shooting and retain energy at extended distance. Best of all, this high level of performance can be had in a light-weight platform.

A number of manufacturers have already jumped on the bandwagon and are offering rifles chambered for the 6mm ARC. In addition to the auto-loading designs, the 6mm ARC is also available in short-action bolt guns. This cartridge may not be the proverbial free lunch, but it comes close.

In the months to come, production and demand will eventually get back on an even keel and new products will find their way to the market. When they do, you can read about them right here. P&SN

NEWS

Expansion of Operation Crystal Shield

The Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) announced the expansion of Operation Crystal Shield. This expansion includes the designation of two additional methamphetamine "transportation hubs" in 2021. Through this effort, the DEA is attacking the entire supply chain, locating and seizing meth shipments before they are broken down and trafficked into communities and neighborhoods. The Chicago Field Division and the San Francisco Field Division have been added to this initiative, along with the nine DEA field divisions originally selected to participate. In addition, operational resources have been increased by 50 percent to attack the meth threat and the violence which accompanies it.

A full copy of the announcement can be read at <https://tinyurl.com/wcagdsjr>

Enforcement Leaders
VOLUME 2

New COPS Publication

Funded by the Bureau of Justice Assistance and published by the Office of Community Oriented Policing (COPS) in partnership with the National Police Foundation, Conversations with Rural Law Enforcement Leaders: Volume 2 discusses how rural law enforcement agencies face increasing rates of crime and disorder, often with dwindling resources to combat them. To discuss critical issues in rural policing, this report has convened a listening session series with rural law enforcement stakeholders to discuss rural law enforcement's common concerns, challenges and needs. The results of the second round of these sessions, which took place in seven states in late 2019 and early 2020, are summarized in the report.

BUSTED!

JAMES L. MCCLINTON, PH.D.

All my rowdy friends are coming over tonight... Three Metro-North Railroad employees were suspended without pay for turning a storage room under New York City's Grand Central Terminal into a man cave, complete with a television, refrigerator, microwave, and futon couch, according to the Metropolitan Transportation Authority. Sources said investigators had found the space after receiving an anonymous tip that the three — a wireman, a carpenter foreman and an electrical foreman — had built a secret room where they would “hang out and get drunk and party.” (Someone was upset because they weren't given the secret knock.)

I wonder how easy it is to legally change one's name from “Geneus” to “Idiot”?... A car with a 30-year-old man riding inside whose last name is “Geneus” was recently pulled over in Port St. Lucie, Florida, in the early morning hours. Police said that Geneus told the officer that the bags of brown and white substances found in his backpack were baking supplies — “sugar and a bag of cornstarch to bake a cake.” Geneus, who had an outstanding warrant, was taken into custody and the contents of both bags tested positive for molly (ecstasy). While at the jail, Geneus dropped another bag of white powder which tested positive for meth. He was charged with trafficking phenethylamines. (Good golly, it's molly!)

Kind of like prison wine, but more upscale!... In Alabama, authorities say a large amount of wine and other evidence was seized at the Rainsville Waste Water Treatment Plant. DeKalb County investigators say they uncovered a large illegal winery operating there at the facility. Acting on an anonymous tip, agents and investigators located a large amount of illegal alcohol and a winery which appeared to have been in operation for a long period of time. A 62-year-old supervisor at the plant was arrested on a misdemeanor charge of possession of an illegally manufactured alcoholic beverage and a felony charge of using his official position for personal gain. (Schidt's Creek wine, anyone?)

“Okay, so where's the stuffing, cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie?”... In Milwaukee, a suspect stole a man's car tire and left the vehicle propped on top of a frozen turkey. “I've never seen anything

REAL STORIES OF GENUINE ABSURDITY

Oh, the weather outside is frightful and Santa's carrying his patrol rifle...

In Riverside, California, three men allegedly tried to steal a car at the local mall during a police undercover operation. “Two of the men saw the detective and ran off,” said a police spokesman. As officers swooped in, one yelled, “Get him, Santa!” Sure enough, St. Nick came running and tackled one of the suspects, backed up by a man dressed in an elf suit. It turns out that both were undercover officers. One suspect was totally perplexed at being held at gunpoint by the man wearing a green jacket, bright red pants, and red and white striped stockings. The team made several other arrests, including a shoplifting ring which “targets” Target stores. “We worked inside the store,” said a detective, “identified shoplifters and, when they split the scene, Santa was there to take them into custody.” (You better not rob, you better be nice, or else Santa Claus will put you on ice.) like this before,” the victim told reporters. “I heard of people putting bricks under a wheel, but I've never heard of a turkey underneath.” He addressed the tire thief, saying, “I hope you enjoy that tire because you could have given that turkey to somebody who really needed it.” He said he filed a police report and expects it will cost $600 to repair the car. (That's a fowl act.)

I see that you've found the Addam's family summer vacation house.... There is a house for sale in Guildhall, Vermont, which has four bedrooms, two bathrooms, an updated kitchen, and seven jail cells — complete with barred windows, toilets and cots. The property, listed for $149,000, used to serve as the Essex County jail, with the jailer's quarters attached to the back of the “house.” Abandoned since 1969, the cells are now covered in dust and, according to the listing, are just waiting for a creative buyer to “bring...ideas on what this 28-foot-by-40-foot wing could be!” (It's great for when the kids need a “time out.”)

Home Alone 5: Escape from New York!... Police said a 12-year-old boy and his seven-year-old female cousin jumped into the boy's parents' Range Rover in Queens, New York, and embarked on a drive across state lines which lasted more than 100 miles. The 12-year-old was behind the wheel for five hours, making it to the Delaware border. At one point, state troopers caught up with them, but the children sped away. Police didn't follow at high speeds for the safety of the children. The 12-year-old also tried to buy cookies using his dad's credit card at a rest stop near New Jersey's border with Delaware. The girl said the trip was fun, but added that she had wished she could have driven. A local TV station reported that no one was hurt in the incident. (This 12-year-old seems to have better driving skills than most adult drivers in New York.)

It was a good plan until her slovenly appearance and lack of credentials came into play.... A 47-year-old woman's supposed plan to garner free food at a Chick-fil-A® in Rockmart, Georgia, ended in her arrest on charges of impersonating a public officer. Police say the Dallas (GA) woman had repeatedly visited the restaurant, telling workers she was an FBI agent and threatened to arrest them if they didn't serve her a complimentary meal. The woman's arrest report states that, when confronted by police, the woman maintained her little charade, telling arresting officers that her credentials were electronic and talking “into her shirt like she was talking into a radio.” The Rockmart police chief said in a statement to news outlets, “You will not hear a real officer demand a meal anywhere.” (Talk about deep cover...) P&SN
